

AND Professional Services: Migration

Putting your documentation into perspective

Your existing documentation is an invaluable collection of network knowledge built up by your staff over the years. It is the basis for making decisions on network upgrades, maintenance, repairs and even marketing campaigns.

Regardless of whether your documentation is in paper format, AutoCAD™, Smallworld™, etc., we have the essential experience and know-how to take your data and migrate it to AND living documentation.

Let our professionals discuss the best solution for you. Whether this is using your legacy data as background information for a re-documentation program or translating network objects in your current documentation to AND components complete with geo and address data.

The AND Data Migration process includes:

- Analysis of existing documentation
- Generation of expected migration result examples
- Realisation description including effort and cost
- Data extraction
- Pilot migration
- Generation of component libraries
- Migration of data including addresses where applicable
- Data verification
- Post processing
